

In Terrace, T Stands For Trouble

Our Reporter Lived There A Week, Found Filth, Fear, Poverty, Immorality

(The first of a series of four articles on Bristol Terrace.)

By LARRY INCOLLINGO
Courier-Times Staff Writer

I lived one week in Bristol Terrace.

My reasons for doing so were to find the answers to the following questions:

- Why is it considered one of the worst trouble spots in Bucks County?
- Why is 60 per cent of Bristol Township's serious crime committed there?
- Why do more than 50 per cent of the public assistance checks coming into the township go into the Terrace?
- Why, with its comparatively small population, is it one of the largest distribution points of surplus foods in the county?
- The reason for its physical condition, and why do people live there?

After a week of visiting in their homes, sitting at their tables, sharing their food and drink, this is what I found:

But for a few families most of the Terracites are the victims of self-inflicted poverty.

The high crime rate is the result of a combination of illiteracy, frustrations and fear.

The cost of public assistance is so high because the county's department of public welfare, whose primary function in the Terrace is aid to dependent children, has become the hapless dupe of skip-away fathers and errant mothers.

Popular Food Stop

It is one of the county's largest surplus food stops for the same reason.

Its run-down condition can only be attributed to a people who appear to be taking the easy way out of earning a livelihood.

The Terrace was constructed by the government during World War II during a nationwide defense housing program. It is that group of row houses bordered by Lakeland, Anderson and Barret Aves. It was called Terrace II until clean, tidy Terrace I became Green Lawn Park. It remained government property until 1957 when it was sold to a private interest.

The Bucks County Recorder of Deeds revealed that the sale of Terrace 2 was made that year by the United States of America acting by and through the Public Housing Administration, Housing and Home Finance Agency to Bristol-Bloomfield, Inc., a Michigan co-partnership for the sum of $387,750.

Littered With Filth

What must have been an attractive settlement of 360 one-story row houses alphabetically latticed along its main horseshoe drive has become Bucks County's single largest trouble spot and eyesore.

Streets and courts are littered with filth. Concrete walkways which once separated carpets of green lawn now form forbidding gray paths between patches of naked earth and houses, whose masonry

Districting Dilemma

Reapportionment Up To State Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today apparently left the reapportionment of the Pennsylvania Legislature up to the state's Supreme Court.

In a brief opinion, the high court vacated an order of a special three-judge federal court handed down April 29, 1964, finding Pennsylvania's 1964 reapportionment laws unconstitutional. The lower court, however, had acted before the Supreme Court's June 15 decision requiring both houses of a state legislature to be based as nearly as possible on population.

Meantime, the state Supreme Court had taken the matter over and fixed a deadline of Sept. 1, 1965, for a new apportionment of both houses.

The Pennsylvania state court said if the deadline is not met "we shall take such action as may be appropriate in light of the then existing conditions."

Today's unsigned opinion reviewed these facts and then said: "The judgement of the district court is therefore vacated and the cause is remanded for further consideration in light of the decisions supervening since the entry of the judgement."

The state court's opinion was issued on Sept. 29, 1964. It took into account the U.S. Supreme Court's "one man, one vote" decision.

The Pennsylvania reapportionment law was passed in a special legislative session. Gov. William Scranton signed the measure on Jan. 9.

It was challenged in federal court by a group of citizens from the Wilkes-Barre area. The state suit was initiated by the Philadelphia Committee of 70.

The lower federal court first barred any election under the law, including a primary last April 28. But this part of the

Rohm & Haas Union Gets 'Vote Of Confidence'

20 Wives Join Men On Picket Lines

By SCOOP LEWIS
Courier-Times Staff Writer

Wives of striking Rohm & Haas Co. workers today joined their husbands on the picket line as the strike at the Bristol Township chemical and plastics plant entered its 19th day.

Despite intermittent showers, about 20 wives joined their husbands in front of the plant's main gates between 7 and 8:15 this morning. The women planned to increase their numbers this afternoon and tomorrow.

Vote Of Confidence

It was relatively quiet on the strike scene this morning and throughout yesterday. Saturday afternoon, however, produced a bit of activity as more than 40 helmeted police officers of Bristol, Falls and Bensalem Townships were summoned to the scene after some 800 strikers massed in front of the plant. A mass meeting of Local 88,

United Glass and Ceramic Workers of North America, AFL-CIO-CLC, Saturday morning resulted in union members giving its negotiating committee a "unanimous vote of confidence."

Let's Get This Strike Settled

An Editorial

Whatever the issues involved, none could be so critical as to rule out reasonable discussion, enlightened attitudes of compromise, undelayed agreement in the dispute between the Rohm & Haas Company and Local 88, United Glass and Ceramic Workers, and immediate return to their jobs of some 1,500 production workers.

The strike is now in its 19th day. Losses continue to be staggering.

The workers themselves are losing $35,000 a day in wages. As of now this adds up to $665,000 in wages never received by the employees and their families.

The loss in business to the Bristol, Levittown and other commercial centers is becoming an increasingly serious factor.

The loss to both company and union in community goodwill is an intangible not easily translatable in terms of money. It is always a serious implication in prolonged labor-management strife.

The incongruity of this 19-day-old strike is the fact that for 14 years Rohm & Haas and Local 88 have lived together in relative harmony.

The strike is the first work stoppage at the big plant, employing a total of 2,500 people, since 1950. It is only the second stoppage in the 50-year history of the operation.

That it should have happened at all is something of a tragic outcome of a dispute that should have been resolved without need of resort to extremes — extremes that are now creating hardship among people and payroll, business, goodwill and company operational losses that can never be recovered.

We are not so greatly concerned with what caused the breakdown in rapport between company and union as we are concerned that negotiators of Rohm & Haas and Local 88 establish as quickly as possible a climate for the earliest possible settlement of this controversy.

The interests and welfare of Local 88 and its membership and their families, of the Rohm & Haas Company, of the borough of Bristol, and of the broader community of Lower Bucks County demand such settlement and speedy return of the plant to normal operation.

Good Evening!

Winter closes in on the West.

Blizzards sweep Arizona and Nevada and 15 inches of snow buries parts of Montana and Colorado and all of this could be a sign that our long, lovely, beautiful and very dry fall in Bucks County is all but ended.

A few days of soaking rain badly needed and the sooner we get it the better. Rivers, streams, wells, reservoirs all getting mighty low and the woodlands becoming more and more an explosive tinder-box.

It's Raining But Not Enough

Occasional showers today produced Lower Bucks County's first measurable rainfall in 11 days, but it wasn't expected to ease drought conditions.

The Trenton Weather Bureau expected possibly a quarter-inch of rainfall today and tonight before a cold front from the west moves in to drop overnight temperatures into the 40s.

On Nov. 5 we had .12 inches of rain. The normal rainfall for November is 3.16 inches.

Partly cloudy skies and cooler temperatures in the 50s are forecast for tomorrow. Today's high was expected in the 60s. At 3 p.m. the thermometer reading was 56 degrees.

Liquor Charges Filed In Bensalem

Dance Raided, 4 Arrested, 300 Stunned

About 300 members and guests of the Bensalem Taxpayers Association were stunned shortly before midnight Saturday when a dozen police officers and liquor control agents raided their dance.

The dance at the Union Fire Co. hall on State Road and Cambria Ave., Cornwells Heights, was invaded by six agents of the Pennsylvania State Liquor Control Board, who had purchased $2.50 tickets to the event.

Outside the hall were two state police officers from the Trevoze Barracks and four Bensalem Township officers including Police Chief William F. Riempp. The state police troopers and Bensalem officers were assisting the agents.

Arrested were three bartenders and William "Barney" Hughes, chairman of the dance. The four were charged with selling alcoholic beverages.

The agents charged that the sale of the dance tickets included admission and food and beverages and that this implied the sale of alcoholic beverages.

Taxpayer association members, said however, that no liquor was sold and that beer which was being served had been donated and was being given to guests free.

Basket Of Cheer

They said the only sale taking place was that of tickets for the drawing of a winner of a basket of liquor.

One member said, "If they want to crack down on the sale of chances for baskets of cheer, as they are called, why don't they enforce the law throughout the township."

He said, "I've never seen them arrest anybody before at any of the carnivals being held throughout the summer. If they're going to enforce the law — why do they discriminate?"

State Department of Public Welfare.
Latest department figures show the number of countians on relief rolls stands at 2,240 as compared with the previous month's 2,283. Percentagewise, the 2,240 persons represent 0.6 per cent of the county population and compares with the average for the state as a whole of 3.6 per cent.

USW Local Presidents Meet On Contract Objectives

NEW YORK (UPI) — The grassroots leadership of the United Steelworkers Union (USW) meets today to delineate its contract objectives in the forthcoming negotiations with the basic steel industry.

More than 700 presidents of USW locals at the nation's 11 biggest steel producers planned two days of discussions to establish guidelines for the union negotiators who will begin bargaining with the industry after the first of the year.

The USW's 170-man Wage Policy Committee, which has the final voice on contract matters, will set in on the two-day meeting, but only to gauge the sentiment of the local leaders. The committee will meet next month to chart the union's official contract policy.

The contract negotiated with these companies traditionally sets the pattern for the entire industry.

In all, the USW has 3,300 locals and 1.2 million members, making it the nation's third largest union.

The Wage Policy Committee, at its meeting next month, is expected to send notice to the major steel producers that it wishes to open negotiations for a wholly new contract sometime after Jan. 1. The union would then be free to strike in 120 days—on May 1—if no settlement is reached.

In the expiring three-year contract and the one which preceded it, the union forsook wage increases in favor of job saving provisions and fringe benefits. This time the union leadership is on record as favoring a top-to-bottom contract renegotiation with major emphasis in economic improvement.

The USW approaches negotiations under the cloud of an internal power struggle between long-time President David J. McDonald and I. W. Abel, the USW secretary-treasurer, who seeks to replace McDonald in the presidency. The union election will be Feb. 9.

It has been charged by anti-McDonald forces that the meeting opening today is a campaign tactic of the incumbent president—giving the local presidents a few days in the big town with USW international headquarters in Pittsburgh footing the tab.

The drive to unseat McDonald who has been at the helm for a dozen years, has been given a respectable chance of succeeding. A rank and file mill hand, Donald Rarick of McKeesport, Pa., polled one third of the votes four years ago when he ran for the presidency against McDonald. The almost

County May Have $400,000 Surplus

Bucks County Commission Chairman John J. Bodley said today he expects a county surplus of more than $400,000 at the end of the year.

This, Bodley said, contrasts with the "lots of unpaid bills" the present board of commissioners inherited from the previous one in January.

Bodley said that in many instances the budget allocations made to various county departments were greater than the expenditures. Also, Bodley said,

State Decides Not To Ban Hunting

HARRISBURG (UPI) — State officials today decided not to ban hunting in Pennsylvania at this time despite continuation of parched conditions in the state's woodlands.

Gov. William W. Scranton, after meeting with Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, state forests and waters secretary, emphasized that the woodland situation still is critical and if fires continued he may eventually have to bar the woods to hunters.

But the governor said it was hoped that his ban on open fires and smoking, imposed on Nov. 14, plus the possibility of some rain will reduce the forest fire threat.

Since the small game season opened Oct. 31, fires have been averaging 25 per day. But this number increased to 45 daily last week and 87 were reported

It appears if you go to Harvard you must be a tough football player a la John Kennedy and being one of the smartest students there doesn't exempt you.

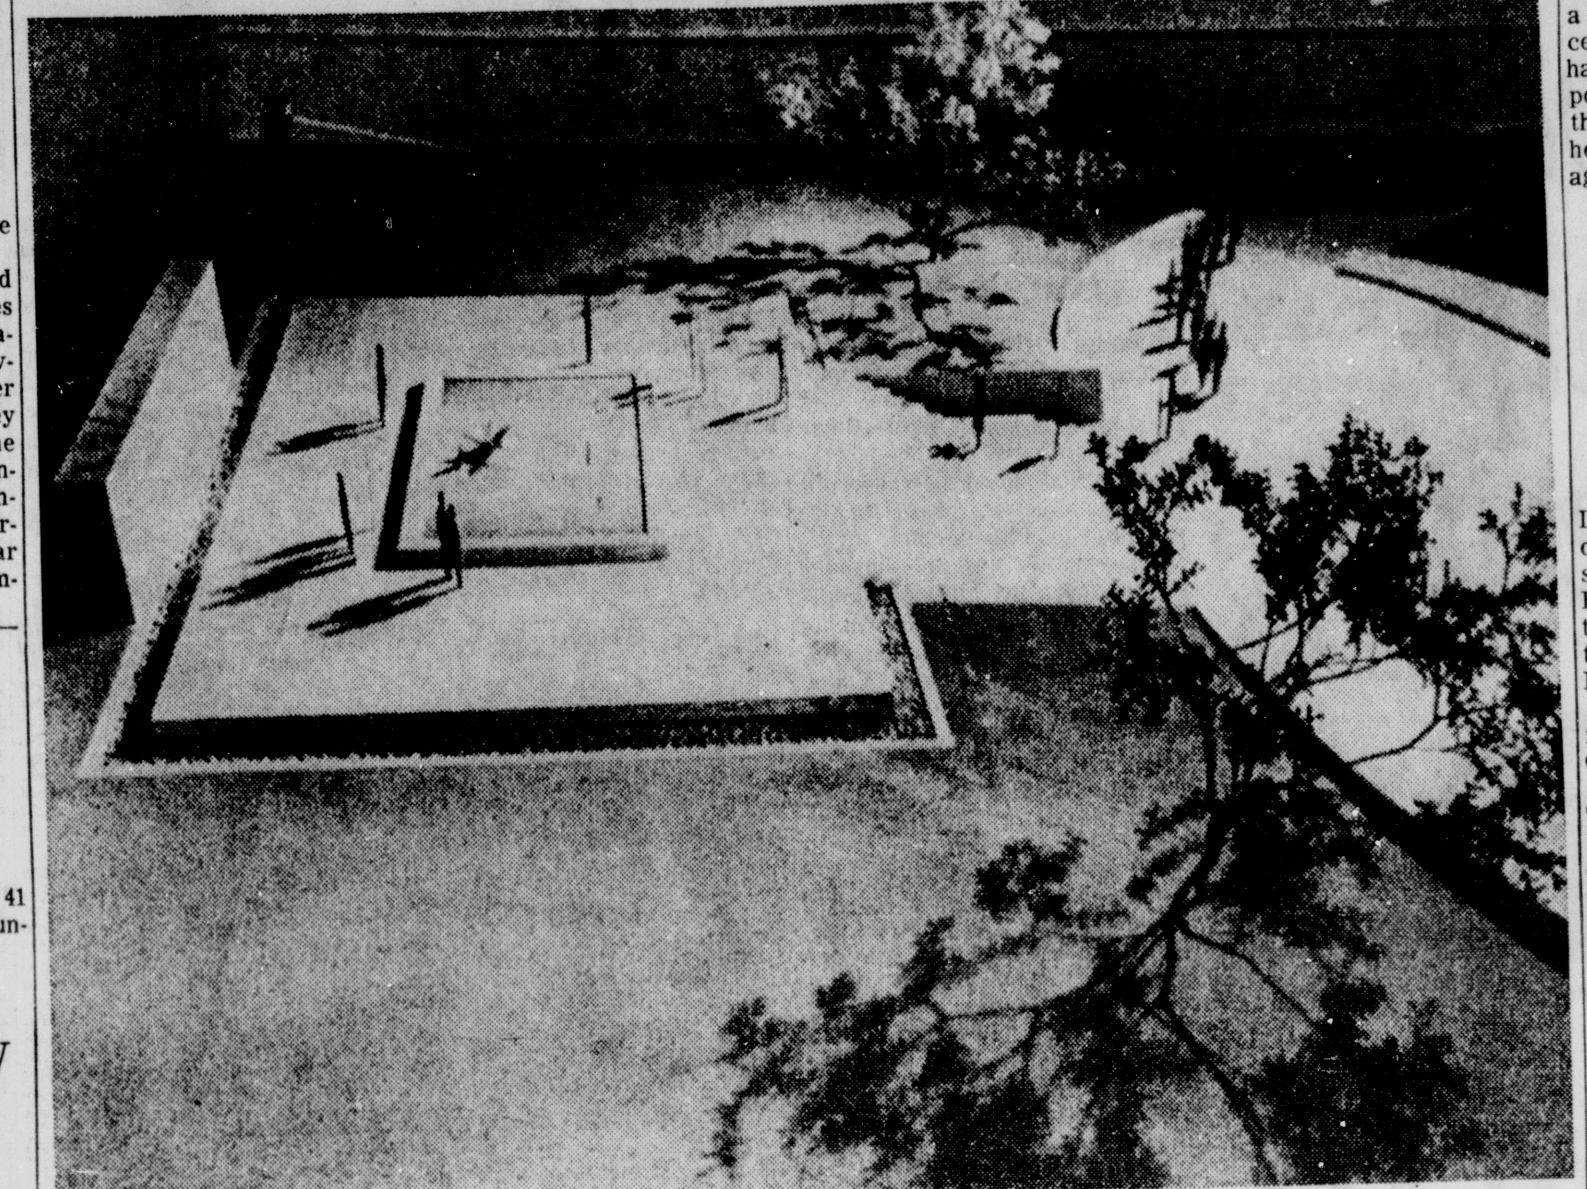

Word has been received by Robert Waterbor's parents that Robert has a broken leg, and is attending his classes at Harvard University on crutches. His foot has been placed in a cast.

According to Robert, it is a clean break just above the ankle, and came as a result of a late afternoon recreational game of two-hand touch football. Ordinarily, nobody goes down in a game of this kind, but somehow there was a pile-up, and the broken leg ended the game. X-rays at Harvard Medical Center showed the break.

A Pennsbury High School graduate of 1962, Robert was listed as one of the top 50 high school graduates in the country by Harvard, Yale and Princeton Universities. He chose Harvard, and was notified by that college this past summer that he is in the top 3 per cent of the undergraduate student body. Robert is taking a co-major in physics and pre-medicine. His present schedule is made up of physics, chemistry, Russian and philosophy.

Missionary's Life Debated

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — The Communist-backed Congolese rebels threatened to execute an American missionary doctor today, alleging he was a "U.S. spy and major fighting the revolutionary forces."

The threat to execute Paul Carlson, 36, was made in a Stanleyville rebel radio broadcast heard here.

(But another Stanleyville radio broadcast monitored in London said the leftist rebels had agreed to negotiate on Carlson's fate with the U.S. consul in that insurgent capital.

The broadcast, heard by British Broadcasting Corp (BBC) monitors, said the rebel "people's government" had assigned its foreign minister, identified only as Kanza, to meet with the U.S. consul.

The rebel radio at Stanleyville, in the original broadcast heard in Leopoldville, said Carlson, would be executed at noon (5 a.m. EST) following sentence by a rebel military tribunal.

The U.S. embassy here denied a month ago that Carlson was a major or even a member of the U.S. Army Reserve. His only military service was as an enlisted man in the U.S. Navy in the 1940s, the embassy said.

Carlson worked in the northern Congo from a jungle mission station at Wasolo, near Yakoma. The rebels arrested him at Yakoma about Sept. 20.

Carlson's wife and two children were evacuated with all other American missionaries before the rebels arrived. Carlson, the only American remaining in the area, refused to follow urgent recommendations that he also leave.

After the rebels overran the district, Carlson was allowed to carry on his medical work for a time. In sporadic radio messages to Bangui, capital of the neighboring Central African Republic, he said he was giving medical care to wounded rebel soldiers.

The Weather - 5 Days Ahead

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — A top U.S. space official said today the United States is working on a system of earth satellites to predict weather accurately five days in advance.

Dr. Edward C. Welsh, executive secretary of the National Aeronautics and Space Council, said scientists now see "the potential of even weather control."

Welsh, at the opening session of the third international symposium on bioastronautics and the exploration of space, also told newsmen that America has a "better than 50-50 chance" of beating Russia to the moon.

A workable weather satellite system is expected as part of the so-called "fallout" of technology from the nation's $20 billion program to conquer the moon starting at the end of this decade.

More Women Work, Receive Less Of Nation's Total Pay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of the Labor Department's Women's Bureau says that although more and more women are going to work they are receiving less and less of the country's total wages.

Mrs. Mary Dublin Keyserling said Sunday that about 45 per cent of the women between 18 and 64 in the United States hold jobs. The figure is expected to go still higher.

But, she added in an address to a meeting of home demonstrators, the wage gap between men and women "has been widening over the past 24 years in every major industry in which large numbers of women are employed."

Dzurinko Seeking District Presidency

Frank Dzurinko, president of Local 4889, United Steelworkers of America, representing the steelworkers at U.S. Steel's Fairless Works, this weekend tossed his hat in the ring for the presidency of the union's District 7.

Dzurinko is opposing the current head of the district, Hugh Carcella of Philadelphia.

Dzurinko, who lives at 1008 Trenton Road, Fairless Hills, announced his candidacy yesterday following a visit to Pittsburgh.

The district represents 80,000 members of 190 locals in the Philadelphia-Harrisburg area. Asked to comment on the current power struggle between USW president David J. McDonald and secretary-treasurer I. W. Abel, who announced his candidacy for McDonald's $50,000-a-year job, Dzurinko said he would have a statement to make later on.

Dzurinko said at this time he was not in a position to say whether he favors McDonald or Abel as union heads.

Why Didn't the Union Officers Ask for a Secret Ballot on the Strike at Rohm & Haas?

1. The mass meeting of the Union on Saturday was a failure—it was broken off without giving the members a chance to be heard. There was no secret ballot on whether to accept the company's offer or continue to strike. The decision to continue the strike was made by a militant minority.

2. The Union knows the Rohm & Haas offer is fair and reasonable. At a 3% increase in hourly rates (9¢ per hour on the plant average of $2.98) the company offer is greater than the average increase given by other major chemical producers in recent wage negotiations.

3. The Union knows that Rohm & Haas fringe benefits were among the highest in the Delaware Valley before the strike. With a 4¢ increase offered, they total $1.05 per hour.

We urge the Union members to ask their officers to make a prompt, reasonable settlement.

Les Crane Show Has Real Potential

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — ABC-TV's new, late-hour Les Crane show begins its second week to night, and despite the doubts and panic that naturally swirl around such a major entry, it's only a few key steps from reality.

Potency nowadays in television stems chiefly from the fact that new series generally are not given as much time to succeed as they used to be, when costs were cheaper. And this type of program needs time to shake down. If Jack Paar, who is now video's best showman, had been judged too hastily in his early days on the "Tonight" program, it is possible he might not have caught on the way he later did. But the right people had the sense — or the lucky guessing ability — to see his potential. Likewise, what is needed, head-on, is the simple cool-headedness to see that Crane and his show also have great potential, and to merely tighten up the loose ends which make the big difference.

Too Many Cooks
ABC is naturally thinking mostly of the lovely advertising income. But in terms of television viewing, it is also a fact that the very notion of a show like Crane's — which is mostly talk, controversy and local-interest entertainment realism — is, in concept, more important to the medium than anyone in it, or connected with it, and should be given the most sensitive, exacting treatment, by people of taste and authority. Too many cooks will spoil it. A new producer has already been named.

Above all, the pacing and editing need to be tightened and made swifter. The fact that the Crane show does not rely on variety-type entertainment as its change of pace means that the editing, the location sequences and the ability of the producer and director to know how to get the most out of a discussion must assume this function. The shrewdness of Paar is in his know-how at keeping an audience always on the edge, frustrating a viewer's desire to switch to another channel, and always leaving the watcher hungry for more.

Furthermore, Crane, who has good command, presence and star quality if handled properly, must remember not to be over-ly impressed with big-name guests while laying in to lesser personalities. It is his show, his stock in trade is himself — an image of good-natured controversy, not of a very learned level — and he should not fear to be sensibly tough with all comers. Otherwise he is nothing. As himself, Crane will make enemies, but he will at least have a definitive audience and image, and be his own man.

The Channel Swim: Juana Castro, sister and political foe of Fidel Castro, appears on NBC-TV's "Meet The Press" this Sunday. "Churchill at 90: An appreciation by Richard Burton" is the half-hour presentation of "ABC Scope" Nov. 25. Burton, whose acting has been admired by Sir Winston, was the voice of the statesman in the television series "The Valiant Years."

CHICAGO — A Negro taunting a man he and two others knocked down on a bus while 20 passengers watched without doing anything to help the victim: "Where's your white friends now?"

WASHINGTON — Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., accusing conservative Democrats of using their seniority power in the present House committee system to frustrate liberal programs of their own party: "For the first time in many years, the Democratic majority has the numerical strength to institute changes in the committee system which will allow a majority of the majority to chase the conservative foxes out of the liberal chicken coop."

CINCINNATI — Rep. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, replying to a question about what he thinks the Republican party can do to recover from the election debacle: "A little more thinking and a little less talking would be helpful."

WASHINGTON — White House national security adviser McGeorge Bundy saying the United States must make policy considerations of the support Vietnamese guerrillas are receiving from North Viet Nam and Red China:

"It is clear to us that the insurgency of Communist terrorists in South Viet Nam is directed, controlled, supported and sustained by the regime in North Viet Nam. And it is clear to us further that the regime in North Viet Nam is heavily dependent on Red China."

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — James MacArthur, Helen Hayes' adopted son, will co-star in "The Bedford Incident" with Richard Widmark.
